J. M. Barrie

ABOUT THE STORY

James Matthew Barrie (1860-1937), a Scottish author and playwright, is best known for his Peter Pan stories. Barrie was the ninth out of 10 children in his family, and his father worked as a weaver. Though his parents encouraged him to become a minister, Barrie attended the University of Edinburgh, where he studied literature. Barrie married actress Mary Ansell in 1894. The couple did not have any children and divorced in 1909. Barrie became close friends with the Llewelyn Davies family, and when both parents died, Barrie became the trustee and guardian of their five boys, who inspired Barrie to invent the character of Peter Pan. The character of Peter Pan first appeared in Barrie's 1902 novel, The Little White Bird. The character of Wendy first appeared in Barrie's 1904 play Peter Pan, which he adapted into the novel, Peter and Wendy (1910).

(AT RISE: Captain Hook's ship. The ship has fallen into disrepair. There is a broken mast CS and some small crates and barrels littering the area. Captain Hook is on his knees scrubbing the deck with a water bucket and sponge. His hook has been replaced with a giant paperclip that has been bent in half. Blondie is sitting on a chair filing her nails and watching Captain Hook work.)

BLONDIE: (Pointing.) You missed a spot.

CAPTAIN HOOK: I did not.

BLONDIE: Yes, you did.

CAPTAIN HOOK: Well, it's difficult to get at. I only have one hand. Smee never would have bossed me around like this.

BLONDIE: Who?

CAPTAIN HOOK: Smee. He used to have your job.

BLONDIE: Well, I bet this deck had spots all over it when he was first mate.

CAPTAIN HOOK: He didn't care about the way the deck looked. That isn't the point of being a pirate.

BLONDIE: Well, then, what is the point of being a pirate?

CAPTAIN HOOK: You know, to fight and pillage and stuff. To live life free of control and get rich by plundering treasure. Argh!

BLONDIE: Argh? What is that... "argh"?

CAPTAIN HOOK: No, my arm is just cramping up, argh.

(Smee enters with Lilian.)

SMEE: Captain!

CAPTAIN HOOK: Smee, is that you?

SMEE: Yes, it's me, Captain. You look awful. What happened?

CAPTAIN HOOK: (Shouts.) Smee! You've got to save me! (Indicating Blondie.) This wench took your job and now all she does is boss me around, and give me orders, and tell me to bathe. I don't like the bubbles. they make me uneasy.

SMEE: I do remember that.

CAPTAIN: And she makes terrible jokes about my missing hand all the time! My hook broke off because she made me use it to unclog the toilet, and she made me replace it with a paperclip.

BLONDIE: That's not true. I give you constant encouragement. Double high-five. Ha! Ha!

CAPTAIN HOOK: See? (Points at Lilian.) Who's that?

LILIAN: Don't you remember me?

CAPTAIN HOOK: Tiger Lily?

LILIAN: It's Lilian now, actually. I went to law school, so I needed a more professional-sounding name. Oh, and by the way, here... (Hands Captain Hook a stack of papers.)

CAPTAIN HOOK: What's this?

LILIAN: A lawsuit for tying me up, trying to drown me, and calling me names.

SMEE: (To Captain Hook.) Here, I have one, too. (Hands Captain Hook another stack of papers.) This one's for not paying me for 12 years and dragging me around with your hook all the time. Apparently, I could have gotten tetanus.

CAPTAIN HOOK: Is this some kind of joke?

SMEE: Tetanus is no joke, Captain. It affects thousands of people every year. Also, I want to be really rich.

CAPTAIN HOOK: That was so long ago. I haven't done any cool pirate stuff in years because I've been too busy filing tax returns and scrubbing the deck with a sponge because she... (Indicating Blondie.) ...ran my whole crew off.

BLONDIE: You may not have a crew anymore, but this deck is the cleanest I've ever seen it. There isn't a spot of blood anywhere.

CAPTAIN HOOK: Because I have a paperclip for a hand!
